PART III: DIGITAL COMMONS ACCESS

Please carefully review the following statements with your thesis adviser, and select box 1 to release your thesis to the World Wide Web or box 2 to restrict access to the Connecticut College community. If you select box 2, also indicate the duration of the restriction. Once you have done this, confirm your selection with your signature and that of your adviser.

You will always have the option of contacting the Digital Commons administrator to move a thesis from unrestricted to restricted access in the future regardless of your current selection. If you do not make a selection, the thesis will be restricted to indefinite on-campus access by default. You, as author, will retain copyright to your thesis, regardless of your selection.

1. Internet release:

I hereby grant permission to make my Senior Honors Thesis, in its entirety, accessible to the Connecticut College community and the World Wide Web via Digital Commons @ Connecticut College. I understand that this choice will enable my thesis research to be available over the World Wide Web and searchable via Google, Bing or other Web search engines.

2. Restricted to Connecticut College community:

I hereby grant permission to make my Senior Honors Thesis, in its entirety, accessible only to the Connecticut College community via Digital Commons @ Connecticut College for the following time period:

- Access restricted to on-campus use indefinitely
- Restricted to on-campus access for six months
- Restricted to on-campus access for one year
- Restricted to on-campus access for two years

Note: If you choose restricted access for a fixed time period, it is your responsibility to contact the Digital Commons administrator before it expires to renew the period of restriction. Once the restricted access period expires your thesis will become available over the World Wide Web and searchable via Google, Bing or other Web search engines.
